

Reading to Learn A Three-Day, Grade 3-6 Reading Initiative

Nov. 1, 2012, January 8, 2013, and February 12, 2013

Have you ever had a student read a passage and not be able to tell you anything he read? We know that students are expected to “read to learn” content beginning in third grade. For those students that have not explicitly been taught to strategically use comprehension/thinking strategies, this is a daunting task. This initiative will focus on providing instruction for our students in grades three to six in the use of thinking strategies as they navigate increasingly difficult content.

Participants in these three days can expect to receive training as a school team in vocabulary and comprehension instruction. Woven throughout the training will be an alignment of the components to Senate Bill 1; KY ELA Common Core Standards, formative assessment, and highly effective teaching and learning.

This initiative will be led by Nancy Huston. Nancy’s background includes working as our regional KY Reading First coach for four years. She was the assistant to the director of the WKU Reading project for eight years. Most recently she has worked as GRREC’s Early Reading First Grant Coordinator. She is currently working as a facilitator with the ELA Common Core Standards network and as GRREC’s Elementary Literacy Consultant.
